Proposed Constitutional Amendment

Amending the Homestead Property Tax Assessment Exclusion

Shall the Pennsylvania Constitution be amended to permit the General Assembly to enact legislation authorizing local taxing authorities to exclude from taxation up to 100 percent of the assessed valuation of each homestead property within a local taxing jurisdiction, rather than limit the exclusion to one-half of the median assessed value of all homestead property, which is the existing law?

The Homestead Property Tax is a tax on the assessed value of real property. The law provides that real property used as a homestead may be taxed up to a limit of $35,000. The proposed amendment would allow taxing authorities to further reduce the assessment of the homestead property of any owner to $17,500, provided the owner pays the full amount of any other taxes assessed against the property. This would allow for the reduction of property taxes for homeowners, with no other taxes being added.

The amendment would allow for the exclusion of the homestead property from the full amount of other local taxes except the real estate tax and school tuition tax. The amendment would require the township or county to provide written notice of the homeowner's right to Voting is a necessary part of the democratic process.
